JUPITER PLUVIUS CO. DO SOME BIG STUNTS

Many Hundreds of Dollars Damage Sustained By Fishing Firms—Fruit Not Injured—Sand Beach Washed Away—Terrific Nor Easter—Telephone Men Busy.

A terrific wind, hail, rain and snow storm flayed the Grimsby district for about twenty hours, from early Sunday morning until after nine o'clock at night and did considerable damage along the lake front.

So far as the fruit is concerned there was no damage, the limbs being tough enough at this season to resist the wind, and the buds not far enough advanced to be affected by the cold.

Several hundred dollars loss will be sustained by the fish firms on the lake front at Grimsby, where the storm king held full sway.

The shore line at Grimsby is peculiarly adapted to get the full brunt of northeast storms and this storm was considered the worst that has hit the beach in a score of years.

Before the storm the sand strip between the lake and the dredged-out channel was from 100 to 200 feet wide while now there is no place more than 100 feet and in many spots it is reduced to less than fifty.

At one place about two-thirds of the way from the pump house to the harbor channel, the beach is cut clear through making a channel about twenty-five feet wide cutting off access to Phillips and Frank Hands boat houses except by boat or wading.

The lake front has been pushed back many feet, the rear of some of the boat houses now hanging over the water.

On Monday preparations were made by the different firms to get out after nets that were set, and it was necessary to use a team and scraper to dig a channel (where the west channel had been) before the boat of J. and E. Hand could reach the lake.

On Tuesday morning four crews went out for nets, and it was a sorry mess they brought in.

A million cross-word puzzles, with some rebuses, anagrams, and cryptograms thrown into Hamilton Court maze would present an entanglement comparable to the nets, sinkers, floats and hooks commingled with tons of seaweed and jettison of the lake.

It will be several days before any nets can be mended or getting back into the lake and this loss will probably be greater than the property loss already sustained.

During the height of the storm R. J. Moore, combination man, and A. C. Palmer, inspector, of the Bell Telephone staff were called to the lake on account of trouble in the pump house phone. Arriving at the lake they found that the poles leading along the beach were washed out and the wires were dragging back and forth in the surf. In the icy water at times above their knees they worked for a long time before getting matters adjusted. All through the day and until nearly midnight they were "shooting trouble" and it is remarkable how well the system was kept in shape.

The "mushy beach" comparatively little damage was done. Local Manager George Fair, was on the ground (in the water) all day, and the boat and bath houses escaped damage.

DEBENTURES ARE SOLD WELL

The Town Council held a special meeting on Thursday night last to consider the application for a building permit from Ed. Todd.

A blue print was on the table supplied by the contractors Shaffer Bros. and, proving satisfactory the council granted the permit.

The debentures for the new high school were sold to Bell, Gouinlock & Co., of Toronto, at 102.25, in this, the first sale of the debentures, which were at the council will receive $102,250.00 for the debentures which are at 50 per cent.

Intermediate Championship Cup

On Friday evening of this week commencing at seven o'clock, in the spacious dining-room of the Village Inn, will be held by the Grimsby Hockey Club, a sumptuous banquet, at which the John Ross Robertson Memorial Cup, emblematic of the Intermediate Championship of the Ontario Hockey Association will be officially presented to Captain Harry Reid and his victorious Peach Kings, the intermediate champs. At the same time each player will also be presented with a gold medal by the O.H.A. These medals are engraved with the player's name and carry other information. Among the notable sportsmen of Ontario who will sit down at the banquet tables are the three O.H.A. officials, whose pictures appear above, P. J. Mulqueen, chairman of the Olympic Committee and a member of the A.A.U. of C. William A. "Bill" Fry of Dunnville, Immediate Past President of the O.H.A.; W. A. Davis, O.H.A. executive of Toronto; Lou E. Marsh of the Toronto Star, Mike Redden of the Toronto Globe, Gene Fraser of Niagara Falls, and many others. The presentation of the cup and medals will be made by President Easson. Last week the members of the team were each presented with a beautiful knitted white sweater, trimmed with red, and carrying a red shield on the left breast, bearing the words, "Grimsby Peach Kings, Intermediate O.H.A. Champions, 1925." The trainers of the team and Manager Dixon also received a sweater coat, and as an extra touch Manager Dixon was presented with a very handsome leather travelling bag. These presents, along with the watch chains presented some time ago, were made by the fans of the district who raised the money by public subscription. On Friday evening there will also be presented to the members of the team a beautiful white, gold pen knife, a gift from the members of the First Term at Lake Lodge School, as an appreciation of the help and assistance rendered to them during the past winter by members of the Peach Kings in the way of coaching and advice. Tickets for the banquet are now on sale, and owing to the extra heavy expense that is entailed, the price of the tickets has been set at $2.00.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

The League of Nations is an effort to apply the principles of Christianity, to world affairs. It is a venture of faith, eminently ideal, eminently sane and practical. It says to the nations of the world, "Come with us and help us work for peace; to improve labour conditions; to treat the backward races of the world as a sacred trust to civilization; to improve public health by co-operating, for example, in preventing the spread of typhus from Russia through Poland into central and western Europe; to establish, maintain and use an International Court of Justice; to eliminate the white slave traffic and indeed the whole traffic in women and girls; to control the opium traffic; to provide the best and only permanent remedy for unemployment; to reduce the growing burden of armaments; and, in the words of the Covenant, "to promote international co-operation and achieve international peace and security." —(From an article by Miss L. A. Motcraft.)

LACROSSE TEAM FOR GRIMSBY

That Grimsby is going to have a good junior lacrosse team is assured and it looks as if also there might be an intermediate team.

Fred Hendricks started the ball rolling and it did not take long for the boys to enthrone and at a practice game to be held tonight on the school grounds a good bunch of material will be seen.

For an intermediate team there is quite a bit of material and it is hoped that some of the boys will contribute a few players sufficient to put a team in the field. "Bud" Fisher, "Pop" McVicar, Artie Clarke, Fred Hendricks are all past players that are turning out to be at least half-juniors strong, and present indications are that enough interest will be taken by others to make a team. If you are interested turn out tonight.

RARE MIRAGE SEEN OVER LAKE ONTARIO

Lights of Towns from Burlington To Toronto Appear As Plainly As If But Mile Away—Effective On Both Sides of the Lake.

A rare spectacle was witnessed on Saturday night by people living on both sides of Lake Ontario from Niagara to Oshawa.

From eight o'clock until ten o'clock and until midnight, at Niagara-on-the-Lake, the lights of both shores were visible from each other, so distinctly that people in Port Dalhousie, for instance, saw Sunnyside's illuminations as clearly as if they were standing on Toronto Island.

From Oakville, the spectacle appeared to extend all the way from Port Dalhousie, clear around to Hamilton, thence following the north shore to beyond Toronto, from Niagara-on-the-Lake and Port Dalhousie, the lights could be traced, so clearly defined that the rise and fall of the shore could be followed without trouble, from Hamilton, Burlington, Oakville, Port Credit, Mimico, Toronto to Oshawa.

Jack A. Wray and Mrs. Wray, living a half mile east of Grimsby, on Baker road, give a vivid description of the sight. The lights of all the towns and cities from what they thought to be Burlington to Toronto were wonderfully plain and seemed to be no further away than the shore on this side and very low down. A brilliant fluorescence from the sky was observable and though it was cloudy the halo seemed beneath the clouds. There was a brisk east wind blowing. At nine o'clock the lights seemed to be brightest, one in particular, which Mrs. Wray supposed to be the light of the tower gap, Toronto, seemed to wax and wane but always bright. They also could distinguish the lights at Port Dalhousie and thought it is no uncommon sight for people here to see the lights of Toronto and Port Dalhousie on clear nights these seemed less than a mile away and were far more distinct than had been seen in the past.

Those who were fortunate enough to witness the phenomenon could not make up their minds as to whether it was a mirage or direct vision. Those who favored the mirage theory did so because, while the lights along the opposite shore are not infrequently seen, never in their memory have they appeared so bright, and at what appeared to be such a short distance. Those who believed it was direct vision pointed to the fact that the lights appeared to be in their correct relation to the horizon. Some also pointed out that often before a big storm from the east, such as prevailed yesterday, the lights can be seen. On the occasions it has been with some difficulty, however, the light just twinkling in and out without the clear definition and continuity of last night.

The Toronto Star of Monday says: "I have no doubt that the phenomenon reported by residents along both shores of the lake Saturday night were genuine mirages," asserted Sir Frederic Stupart, director of the Toronto observatory, when told that citizens at Niagara-on-the-lake and Grimsby had seen the lights of Toronto, Oshawa, Oakville and other lake shore places distinctly.

"Mirages are caused by refraction of the light, by strata of air of different densities. These strata being of different densities, bend the light. In the case of a mirage light rays from places on earth are bent around so that they are again seen by persons on the earth a great many miles distant.

"The mirages of Saturday night, were I feel reasonably certain, caused by the sudden advent of the cold wave from the north. Saturday evening was unusually mild for this time of year, being 45 degrees at eight o'clock. This changed suddenly colder, and Saturday morning it was just about freezing point.

"The cold wave most likely came in the shape of a wedge, raising the warm air into higher altitudes above it, and constituting a stratum of warmer air above the cold air. The inversion of temperature cause a difference in the density of the air, and light rays from Toronto, and other places were evidently sent back to the earth as they could be seen on the other side of the lake."

Sir Frederic stated that he did not think that low-lying light would be so clearly visible across the lake, without the assistance of refraction. He spoke of one occasion some years ago, when Rochester was visible, in 1875, from Toronto.

SAD STORY OF DEATH FROM OUT FAR NORTH

SEVERAL CALLS FOR FIRE DEPT.

Residence of Timothy Farrell on Elm Tree Sideroad Destroyed—Chimney Fire on Depot Street—Town Dump Causes Trouble.

The residence of Timothy Farrell, on the Elm Tree road, on the Mountain at Grimsby, was burned to the ground on Saturday morning. The alarm was turned in at 10 o'clock and when the Grimsby fire department arrived on the scene the flames had made such headway that it was impossible to save the house. The wind was high and blew embers in the direction of the barn. The efforts of the firemen, however, were rewarded and no damage was done the barn and its contents. This is the second loss Mr. Farrell has sustained in the last few years. His barn was blown down in a terrific storm a few years ago.

The fire department was called at 10.55 on Friday, to extinguish a blaze that had started on the roof of an apartment house on Depot street, owned by R. J. Sneliger. It was soon extinguished by a ventila, but not before a hole was made in the roof. The fire is supposed to have been started by flying embers coming from a bonfire.

The town dump is once more becoming a source of worry and trouble. Some of the citizens ignore all signs or notices. Last week notices were posted, informing the public just what the dump could be used for. Some merchants insist on throwing decayed fruit and pieces of boxes on the dump, and, as a rule, there is brush wood of all kinds thrown there. When the warm weather comes the odor is unbearable, and the small boys take delight in setting the brush on fire, causing the town expense of calling the fire department. Mayor Livingston states that a man will be put at the dump to inspect all loads drawn there, refusing anything except what is supposed to be dumped there.

DR. G. C. MUNRO IS FOUND DEAD

Prominent Physician of Smithville Discovered By Patient—Had Been Dead About Three Hours—Inquest Unnecessary.

Living alone, Dr. George C. Munro, a well-known medical man of Smithville, was found dead in his home on Station street, at about 5.30 p.m., on Wednesday evening, April 16, by L. Womack, an employee of C. L. Adams at the Commercial Hotel, who visited the doctor's rooms at that hour.

Dr. J. H. Woods, coroner, was immediately summoned, and he pronounced life extinct. The doctor had passed away about three or four hours previously. Dr. Munro was noticed on the street about noon hour on the day he died. A small bottle of chloroform was found near at hand and a small handkerchief was still grasped in his hand which covered his face. Crown Attorney Lancaster, St. Catharines, was notified of the circumstances, and after due consideration, deemed an inquest unnecessary. J. Vicar Munro, architect, London, was next communicated with who gave instructions to the undertaker Morris to prepare for a burial.

His father, John Munro, of London, passed away March 17, of last year at the advanced age of 84 years. Besides his wife who was in Washington D. C. at the time of his death, there survive four brothers and one sister, J. Vicar Munro, an architect, in London; E. Christopher Munro, of Edmonton, Alta., and Messrs. A. M. and Kenneth Munro, on the homestead at Glenworth, near London. Mrs. T. B. Beattie, of Wilton Grove, near London, the remains were taken to London for interment.

Mrs. Sidney Clay Horribly Mangled By Savage Huskies at Chesterfield Inlet—Thousand Miles from Nearest Doctor—Husband Also Away On Distant Trip—Amputations Performed By Mounted Police and Hudson Bay Officials—Succumbs After Three Days' Suffering.

News reached Grimsby by telegram on Tuesday, April 14, by her parents here of the death at Chesterfield Inlet of Mrs. Sidney E. Clay, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Warner, of Main street, west, North Grimsby. No details were given beyond the fact that she had died on September 21 of last year.

On Saturday last a long letter was received from Staff-Sergeant Clay, giving the details which are given in the main essentials in the following despatch which was sent out from headquarters of the R. C. M. P. on Sunday.

"Ottawa, April 19.—Following a savage attack by dogs, Mrs. S. E. Clay, wife of Staff-Sergeant Clay, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, died, despite all efforts to save her life. News of the tragedy, which occurred last September at Chesterfield Inlet, on the northwest coast of Hudson Bay, has just reached the Mounted Police headquarters.

"On September 19, Mrs. Clay was walking alone near the houses of the post when she was set upon by the dogs. It is surmised that one of them snatched at her in play and drew blood, and at that the others set upon her. Hearing the barking, Corporal Petty and Constable Stalworthy, of the R. C. M. P. detachment, ran to the spot and beat off the dogs.

"Mrs. Clay had one leg so badly lacerated that two members of the Mounted Police, Father Daplain, the missionary and Norman Snow, of the Hudson Bay company, amputated it at her own request. The nearest surgeon was nearly a thousand miles away, at The Pas. The operation relieved Mrs. Clay to some extent of pain, but she died on September 21, from shock and loss of blood. The reports and statements forwarded to police headquarters substantiate the amazing bravery and endurance of Mrs. Clay.

"At the time Mrs. Clay was in charge of the detachment at Chesterfield Inlet, was about from the post on a lone patrol up the Inlet to Baker lake and Thelon river. Desperate but unsuccessful efforts were made by Constable Stalworthy, two employees of the Hudson's Bay company and two Eskimos to reach Staff-Sergeant Clay. A severe storm made their attempt to take a boat up the Inlet impossible.

Mrs. Clay was the eldest daughter in a family of thirteen children, and was the fourth in the family, all but one of whom came from Weston-super-mare, Somerset, England, twelve years ago and settled at Grimsby. Mrs. Clay was married in 1915 and went into the west with her husband to Calgary. Shortly afterward her husband was transferred to Herschel Island, and in 1924 was given four months leave when he and Mrs. Clay visited Grimsby.

Leaving here in July of last year Staff-Sergeant Clay was ordered to Chesterfield Inlet where he has been stationed since, but at the time of the disaster was on patrol away up the coast.

Besides her husband Mrs. Clay leaves to mourn her demise her parents, seven brothers and five sisters: William and Charles in England, Thomas, Sidney and George in Grimsby, Samuel of Winona, Arthur of Beamsville, Mrs. E. Best of Toronto, Mrs. George Robinson of Grimsby, Emily Rose, and Lillian at home.

FACTS AND FANCIES

BY FRANK FAIRBORN
(Jas. A. Livingston.)

Plenty of Churches

Beamsville has one on Grimsby as far as church affairs go. That town has now two Presbyterian churches in full swing.

The one congregation known as "Unionist" holds services in the Presbyterian church. The other congregation known as the "Anti-Unionists" holds services in Community Hall.

To the man on the street it would appear that the services in Community Hall draw the largest crowd—but whether this is due to the Christian spirit or the novelty, has not yet been determined.

At all events there are more people attending church services in Beamsville now than there were some time ago, and to that extent the agitation has done good.—June 10th is not far away and then we shall see what we shall see.

The spirit of rivalry often does much to build up church attendance, but whether it develops the true Christian spirit is another question. However, the very fact that more people attend church service is in itself beneficial to a community.

In the question of Union or Anti-Union the benefits are not all on one side. In sparsely settled communities there is no doubt that Union will be for the benefit of the people, while in thickly-populated centers it may have just the opposite effect.

In cities, towns and large villages the various denominations can possibly do more good while working independently of each other, but in smaller communities all Protestant churches would accomplish more if they were united.

As a matter of fact the only differences between most of the Protestant denominations is in the matter of church government—nearly all of them have the same fundamental beliefs.

Of course everybody is not as cosmopolitan as I am because not many people were raised under the same conditions as I was. When I was grown up my schedule fifty-two Sundays in the year was as follows: 10 a.m., Methodist church; 2 p.m., Union Sunday School; 3 p.m., Presbyterian church; 7 p.m., Episcopal church. The result is that while I might fight for my religious rights, I certainly would not fight for the rules and regulations of any church—for they all look alike to me.

In my opinion far too much prominence has been given to the man-made rules, regulations, creeds and doctrines in our Protestant churches, and sometimes not enough attention paid to the "Christian spirit" development.

If all the Protestant people believe in a Divine Creator, a Divine Saviour and a Divine Holy Spirit, what difference does it make whether they worship in a meeting house, a tabernacle, a church, a kirk, or a cathedral—what's the difference whether the preacher lives in a parsonage, a manse or a rectory?

The danger to Christianity today does not lie in the name or the regulations of a denomination—but in the propaganda of "Modern" thought. There are in all our Protestant churches today men who, while they may deny, certainly do not believe in the Divinity of Jesus.

The Divinity of Jesus is the foundation of all Christian religions, both Protestant and Catholic. Remove this belief and the bottom falls out of all Christianity.

Those men of modern thought who deny the Divinity of Christ must of necessity fall back on the religion of the Jews. The Divine conception and birth of Jesus is the only stepping stone from the old dispensation to the new.

If these men of modern thought deny the Saviour of the World as the Christ to reach God, they must fall back on the old channel of burnt offerings and sacrifice.

NOTES AND COMMENTS ON CURRENT EVENTS

BY PETER PETERKIN

The writer has for a long time been of the opinion that man was put on this earth to develop strength of mind and character, and in order to carry this plan out it was necessary to endow man with free will, and to provide temptations. But a member of O.T.A. defenders say that our present Provincial Government is guilty of a terrible sin by passing an act that may place temptation in the path of certain weak-willed people.

None of these O.T.A. defenders, however, has explained how it is possible to build up character by the entire removal of one of the ordinary temptations of human life. They are constantly quoting the Bible, but conveniently forget that whether taken literally or regarded as an allegory, the first book of the Bible shows that when God placed man in the Garden of Eden he allowed temptation to be put in his way, and then did the very thing that the O.T.A. advocates are complaining of now.

Again, in the New Testament, the founder of the Christian Church suffered trial by temptation of a most extreme kind, after having been weakened by 40 days of fasting, which has always been regarded by the church as a sign that every man must be tempted also, and must consequently learn to resist temptation.

The author of the Psalms acknowledged this when he said: "It is well for me that I have been tempted." And in another place the Bible says: "He not like the ass and mule which have no understanding, whose mouth must be held with bit and bridle." Christ's own disciples were severely tempted, but afterwards repented and was forgiven. Judas also fell, but apparently did not attain real repentance.

From these and other passages that might be quoted it is quite apparent that the whole spirit of the Bible is utterly opposed to the doctrine of prohibition and Dean Farrar has given his opinion that, "the question of abstinence or non-abstinence from intoxicating drinks is one which can only be settled by the individual conscience." But what need should there be for a conscience in our makers, if temptation can be abolished by legislation?

As a matter of fact the attempt to abolish liquor temptation by legislation enactment simply leads to the production of a number of temptations where there was only one before. And in addition to drunkenness—which still exists—we have added bootlegging, perjury and contempt for law. A great American statesman, John Quincy Adams, summed up the whole matter when he said: "Seek not to enforce upon your brother by legislative enactment the virtue that he can possess only by the dictates of his own conscience and the energy of his own will."

Not long ago the Spectator published an article entitled: "The Blight of Bryanism," which particularly attacked his absurd attitude on the subject of evolution, which Bryan apparently imagines to be a deadly sin. A very prominent English churchman, Dr. Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham, takes quite a different view from W. J. Bryan when, in a remarkable confession of faith, says:

God's word is not limited to Holy Scripture. God works through Newton and Darwin as well as through Isaiah and St. Paul. God's word is an ever-growing and ever-expanding revelation of Himself. I could not in this era deny the truth of Evolution without being disloyal to the promises I made at consecration.

Bryan in office proved himself to be the most blundering and incompetent Secretary of State the United States ever had, which is certainly an indication that his opinion about anything but vote-getting is not worth while considering.

How dining-cars lose money. On one Western United States railway in 1923 approximately 815,000 meals were served in dining cars, and the average price paid per meal was 39 cents. But the cost of employment, laundry expenses, upkeep of silver, crockery and glassware, fuel for cooking, ice and water and food supplies brought the cost of each meal up to $1.14, making a net loss per meal served of 25 cents.

The total loss for the year amounted to $210,000, without including the cost of heating, lighting and hauling the cars, or the interest on the investment in equipment. The result is that the railway is losing $1.14 on each meal served, and the cost of the meals is $1.14, making a net loss per meal served of 25 cents.

The Minister of the Interior's plan for settlement of the dry areas of Eastern Alberta and Western Saskatchewan seem to have considerable merits. The annual overhead cost of the irrigated area would not be prohibitive if the estimated $2.00 per acre is correct. Provision would, however, have to be made restricting the new owners of the lands from disposing of them or breaking them up into small parcels, otherwise with the advent of the dry areas of wet years, these lands would be disposed of to farmers and history would repeat itself. The idea is to retain these lands permanently in grass for six purposes.

"Is it true, doctor," asked the gushing young lady, "that you are a lady-killer?" "My dear, Madam," replied the doctor, "in regard to the matter of making I make no distinction between the sexes."

BOWLING IS A POPULAR PASTIME
Lawn Bowling is a Summer Sport that is steadily gaining in popularity year by year, and rightly so, as it provides much needed exercise as well as excellent amusement and recreation. Many of the largest and best-known Bowling Greens throughout the country have been grown in Hennie's Seed. This seed is a blend of the best varieties in power, precision to form and maintain a smooth matted sward, constantly green even in dry weather.

MAINLY FOR WOMEN

MARRIAGES, THOUGH ANNULLED, MAY YET BE LEGAL TIES

Attorney-General's Department
Is Preparing Stated Case—
May Upset Judgments—Is a
Queer Mix-Up—If Ontario Act
Upset Second Marriages Would
Be Void.

"In the present situation of the law certain women in Ontario, believing themselves to be legally married, might find themselves living in infatuation with men not legally their husbands at all," stated Attorney-General W. F. Nickle last week, in describing the mix-up in Ontario marriage laws which has followed upon the recent annulment of marriages in certain cases by the Ontario courts. The situation to which Mr. Nickle refers is this—brides and grooms whose marriages are annulled by Ontario courts may find themselves automatically married again by a future judgment of any higher court, holding the present Ontario law invalid—this is irrespective of whether or not they have since married again, or even if there are children by their second marriage. Such second marriages would in this event be invalid, and all children born under it would be illegitimate.

The officers of the attorney-general's department are at present at work preparing a stated case which will be carried as far as the supreme court of Canada, and very probably to the privy council, in an effort to straighten out the legal marriage tangle which has been created by the Ontario marriage law and certain recent decisions under it.

Arises Out of Recent Cases
The situation arises out of recent cases where marriages of young couples under 18 years of age were dissolved, because there was no written consent of the parents. These young people are now free to consider themselves as never having married, and in a position to wed any person of their choice, the same as though they had never gone through a form of marriage.

In neither of the two cases was an appeal taken, as the bride and groom in each case were satisfied to have the marriage annulled; but in some future case, an appeal is taken to the higher court and it is held that the Ontario courts have no power to dissolve marriages under the Ontario law, then all these young people who now consider themselves single and free to do as they please will find themselves automatically married again to the bride or groom from whom they considered themselves legally free.

The situation presents no end of possible hardship, domestic and legal entanglement, according to the Ontario attorney-general. Even where the parties had married again, and had children under their second marriage, such a decision would apply. Take the case of a bride who has had her marriage annulled by an Ontario court—there are now two such cases, and a Barrie case now before Mr. Justice Kelly makes the third. Should she marry again, and have children, and some future appeal decide against the validity of the Ontario law, then she would find herself living with a man who was not her husband, and with children upon whom, would be placed the stigma of illegitimacy.

More than that she would find herself again legally married to the man with whom she had gone through the original ceremony. She would be forced to leave her husband and father of her family, or live with him in a state of illegal relationship, with a family born in illegitimacy.

A Double Complication
In cases where both bride and groom had remarried the situation would be doubly complicated and untenable. Both bride and groom might find themselves with illegal partners in life, and illegal families in their own homes—all arising upon a hair-line decision of a court at Ottawa or London England.

The situation is preposterous and cannot be allowed to continue," asserted Mr. Nickle. "My department is at present at work preparing a stated case to be taken to the highest courts, to determine whether or not the section under which these marriages are being annulled is valid. If it is held that the section is ultra vires then, no matter what the hardships incurred, or how their circumstances have changed, these parties will find themselves legally married to each other. Any subsequent forms of marriage they have gone through would be of no force or effect.

The present situation might result in terrible hardships. It is conceivable that a woman very sensitive about such matters, might feel that she ought to abandon her children because of their illegitimacy. She might feel forced to leave the man she loved, for a man who whom she had no common sympathy or desire to live with. It is a matter that will have decided as soon as possible.

The Ontario Act
For some years the Ontario legislature has provided that a person under 18 must have the consent of their parent or guardian before being married. In all cases, brought, the act was held ultra vires, as beyond the power of the province, and encroaching upon the jurisdiction of the federal government.

As the actual ceremony is within the jurisdiction of the province, the legislature in 1919 amended the act to make the consent a necessary part of the ceremony, and declaring that in the absence of such consent the marriage was null and void.

WHEN CHINA IS BROKEN

In these days, when very many women have some appreciation of old china, even if they do not understand much about it, and when most housewives have a few pieces, either handed down from how to make good a breakage of one of these treasures is an important one.

Disfiguring rivets are not necessary now, as there are adhesives which admit of joining the at any rate on a patterned surface is not visible even at close range, and which is so strong that some men have a piece that has been mended has been dropped it has broken in a flash and not in the old one.

Successful Workers.
Two or three women in England have taken up the work of restoring old china, and are very successful at it.

One of them said that she recently had a large blue and white Oriental plate to restore that had been broken in two and then mended with large rivets that had rusted. She had to take them all out and fill up the holes before she could make a satisfactory mend.

There are a few expert repairers in Canada, too; one of whom adopted as the working on his sign "Never Too Late to Mend."

When a treasured piece is broken it is a great mistake to try home mending, as various kinds of china and pottery need quite different treatment, and very often when a home-mended piece is sent to a restorer it is impossible to make a good job of it because use has been made of an adhesive leaving a white deposit which cannot be removed.

It is important when china is broken that even the tiniest clippings should be saved. The broken pieces should be packed separately in paper to be sent to the restorer. Very often they are put in one parcel and the edges get chipped in transit, making the task of restoration doubly difficult.

At spring cleaning time good old china that has been put by with pieces broken off is sometimes thrown away because it is thought that if pieces are actually missing nothing can be done. But the expert restorer thinks nothing of adding a missing half or inserting a triangular piece at the edge of a plate. Pieces that have a hand or a foot gone can be restored completely, and the flowers on Dresden and Chelsea china that so easily chip can be invisibly mended. One restorer in London had a specially valued old Chinese jar to mend that, besides being broken into 47 pieces, had four or five big pieces missing—so no breakage is hopeless.

Patience Required.
China restoring requires endless patience, as sometimes the whole thing has to be taken to pieces again after it has been stuck together. If the last piece does not fit correctly. The cost varies according to the value of the article mended.

Silk thread should be used as basing on silk and velvet, as cotton leaves a mark.

The regulation size for a placket is thirteen inches long. The facing is cut one and a half inches wide and twenty-six inches long. Cut lengthwise of material.

Under this amendment two marriages have already been annulled, and a third case is pending. Some of the foremost legal constitutional authorities in Toronto assert that in their opinion it was almost a foregone conclusion that the amendment, like the original section, is invalid as being a trespass on dominion powers, and would be held ultra vires in the at appeal taken.

Unfortunately no appeal has been taken to date. In his judgment annulling a marriage, under the first case, under the new section, Mr. Justice Wright expressed the hope that his decision would be reviewed by a higher court. But as the parties were in agreement as to the dissolution, an appeal was taken.

In Barrie Mr. Justice Kelly, at the trial of a similar action stated: "I regret very much that such things (annulments) are possible under this act. It does not seem consistent with building up the morality on which the nation must depend."

TEA THAT SUITS TO A "T"

Testime on Fifth avenue, or on Michigan Boulevard—those are phrases to conjure with. But the passing of the teacups can be just as pleasing a ceremony at your own home, even if it's on Main street. If you buy tea that suits—to a "T".

Such tea will not only be a "cup that cheers but not inebriates"; it will for the average person, be a beverage which, only mildly stimulating, is harmless; is, in fact, actually healthful, for it is a palate-pleaser and has a desirable effect on the appetite and normal digestion. The brewing of such a cup of tea, however, presupposes happy selection.

There's a Tea for Every Taste
If the cup is to be worth the drink, the tea, you buy must be of fine quality. But there are many kinds of fine teas, and you can have a great deal of leeway in your choice, which will depend merely on what your tea tastes happen to be. There are China teas, Ceylon teas, India teas, Java teas, Sumatra teas, Japan teas, among those you will find on the market.

The lighter infusions of good quality China teas are considered choicest by many of the most sophisticated tea-drinkers. But remember that you will find great variation in quality among these teas. China tea may be of the choicest or of the cheapest, so you may not seriously use the name as a sure indicator of quality, but must exercise discriminative judgment.

Dr. Ker
If your guests, your family are made up of novices, tea drinking, or if they are great coffee drinkers, you will probably please them best by getting Ceylon and India black teas. These are not so said as the best quality China teas, but are of rich, full flavor. The India teas are not ordinarily so sweet as the Ceylon teas, and your American family may consider some of them too heavy and strong. But you can buy many India teas of excellent quality, and if you want to appeal to the real epicure, try some of that which comes from the well-known Darjeeling district.

Or, some of the many "mixed teas" may appeal to you. These are the blends of green and black teas, and often result in a decided improvement of flavor over either.

You will find the Java and Sumatra teas much like those from Ceylon and India.

Some Tea Tests
If you buy tea from Japan, you will know the finest quality by the medium or small-sized leaf. The infusion is of a clear, bright green, and of as fragrant an odor as you could ask.

Whatever tea you decide to try, you can be sure it is genuine tea by observing the leaf. The sides of the tea leaf are jagged, having large "teeth"; the leaf is quite long, narrow and pointed at the end.

Try Talk In Your Teapot.
Proper preparation is the next step if the tea is to be truly tempting. The confirmed tea drinker knows that the water used must be fresh and boiling; that the teapot must remain hot; though not boiling hot, for several minutes after the water is put into it; that, unless the tea leaves are removed, the beverage must not stand more than five minutes, at most.

—sugar! Cream! Lemon!
Finally having selected and prepared your tea with scrupulous care you come to the question so often considered all-important: how'll you take your tea?

It is important, however, not insofar as appeal to your particular gastronomic tastes are concerned. It is hard to spoil good tea, you know, and certainly it can't be done by a mere decision to have it in sugar or cream or both or lemon, or nothing at all. Naturally, however, the substance you take in your tea has an effect upon the composition of the beverage as a whole. Sugar and cream make it heavier and are therefore preferred in the winter by some who consider only lemon the proper tea-addition for the hot days. Lemon, if anything at all is used, is, of course, proper for food-tea. Before you take the slice of lemon from the dish, or tilt the cream pitcher, the contents of the teacup are made up of from two to three and one-third per cent. caffeine; of the tannin and gummy materials which are the cause of its "body"; and of oil and resin-containing materials, which are responsible for the distinctive tea flavors.

And Treasuring Your Tea—
Remember that suitable selection, clever concoction nor the addition of your most preferred substance to tea will avail to bring satisfaction over the tea table, if you are careless about its keeping. A fairly cool, dry place is best. Proximity to strong-smelling foods will injure it, exposure to air will impair its flavor, and dampness will ruin it entirely.

Glass or earthenware containers are preferred to metals, with the single exception of silver, for tea-keeping.

When mending children's heavy wool stockings cut out all the worn-out parts and use a crochet hook to crochet in the filling. For many people this is much easier than darning. A piece of velvet pasted in the back of the shoe heel is usually a great saving on the wear of stockings.

Everyone knows how readily holes form in the heels and toes of stockings. A good plan to prevent this is, when knitting the stockings, to loop on the wires along with the worsted or ordinary sewing thread, or better still, a silk thread. If the thread is previously wound around the worsted it will not be troublesome to knit. In darning the same may be effectively done. The heels and toes, which are most apt to become worn, are thus strengthened, and will be found to last twice as long as when knitted or darned with worsted alone.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 1

The Two Types of Tea

There are two distinct types of tea, namely Black Tea and Green Tea. Both are made from the same bush and both are equally pure. The difference is in the process of manufacture which gives each a different flavour. Black Tea after it is plucked is withered and partially 'fired' or dried, then allowed to oxidize by being exposed to the air. This gives Black Tea its dark reddish colour when drawn. Green tea is immediately steamed after plucking, which prevents oxidation. There are delicious blends of "SALADA" in both of these types and also a unique blend of Black and Green Tea Mixed. All are sold in four qualities.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Plenty of Churches

Beamsville has one on Grimsby as far as church affairs go. That town has now two Presbyterian churches in full swing.

The one congregation known as "Unionist" holds services in the Presbyterian church. The other congregation known as the "Anti-Unionists" holds services in Community Hall.

To the man on the street it would appear that the services in Community Hall draw the largest crowd—but whether this is due to the Christian spirit or the novelty, has not yet been determined.

At all events there are more people attending church services in Beamsville now than there were some time ago, and to that extent the agitation has done good.—June 10th is not far away and then we shall see what we shall see.

The spirit of rivalry often does much to build up church attendance, but whether it develops the true Christian spirit is another question. However, the very fact that more people attend church service is in itself beneficial to a community.

In the question of Union or Anti-Union the benefits are not all on one side. In sparsely settled communities there is no doubt that Union will be for the benefit of the people, while in thickly-populated centers it may have just the opposite effect.

In cities, towns and large villages the various denominations can possibly do more good while working independently of each other, but in smaller communities all Protestant churches would accomplish more if they were united.

As a matter of fact the only differences between most of the Protestant denominations is in the matter of church government—nearly all of them hold the same fundamental beliefs.

Of course everybody is not as cosmopolitan as I am because not many people were raised under the same conditions as I was. When I was grown up my schedule fifty-two Sundays in the year was as follows: 10 a.m., Methodist church; 2 p.m., Union Sunday School; 3 p.m., Presbyterian church; 7 p.m., Episcopal church. The result is that while I might fight for my religious rights, I certainly would not fight for the rules and regulations of any church—for they all look alike to me.

In my opinion far too much prominence has been given to the man-made rules, regulations, creeds and doctrines in our Protestant churches, and sometimes not enough attention to "Christian spirit" development.

If all the Protestant people believe in a Divine Creator, a Divine Saviour and a Divine Holy Spirit, what difference does it make whether they worship in a meeting house, a tabernacle, a church, a kirk, or a cathedral—what's the difference whether the preacher lives in a parsonage, a manse or a rectory?

The danger to Christianity today does not lie in the name or the regulations of a denomination—but in the propaganda of "Modern" thought. There are in all our Protestant churches today men who, while they may not deny, certainly do not believe in the Divinity of Jesus.

The Divinity of Jesus is the foundation of all Christian religions, both Protestant and Catholic. Remove this belief and the bottom falls out of all Christianity.

Those men of modern thought who deny the Divinity of Christ must of necessity fall back on the religion of the Jews. The Divine conception and birth of Jesus is the only stepping stone from the old dispensation to the new.

If these men of modern thought deny the Saviour of the World as the channel to reach God, they must fall back on the old channel of burnt offerings and sacrifice.

NOTES AND COMMENTS ON CURRENT EVENTS

BY PETER PETERKIN

The writer has for a long time been of the opinion that man was put on this earth to develop strength of mind and character, and in order to carry this plan out it was necessary to endow man with free will, and to provide temptations. But a number of O.T.A. defenders say that our present Provincial Government is guilty of a terrible sin by passing an act that may place temptation in the path of certain weak-willed people.

None of these O.T.A. defenders, however, has explained how it is possible to build up character by the entire removal of one of the ordinary temptations of human life. They are constantly going the Bible, but conveniently forget that whether taken literally or regarded as an allegory, the first book of the Bible shows that when God placed man in the Garden of Eden he allowed temptation to be put in his way, and thus did the very thing that the O.T.A. advocates are complaining of now.

Again, in the New Testament, the founder of the Christian Church suffered trial by temptation of a most extreme kind, after having been weakened by 40 days of fasting, which has always been regarded by the church as a sign that every man must be tempted also, and must consequently learn to resist temptation.

The author of the Psalms acknowledged this when he said: "It is well for me that I have been tempted." And in another place the Bible says: "Be not like the ass and mule which have no understanding, whose mouth must be held with bit and bridle." Christ's own disciples were severely tempted. Peter fell, but afterwards repented and was forgiven. Judas also fell, but apparently did not attain real repentance.

From these and other passages that might be quoted it is quite apparent that the whole spirit of the Bible is utterly opposed to the doctrine of prohibition and Dean Farrar has given his opinion that "the question of abstinence or non-abstinence from intoxicating drinks is one which can only be settled by the individual conscience." But what need would there be for a conscience in our makers, if temptation can be abolished by legislation?

As a matter of fact the attempt to abolish liquor temptation by legislation enactment simply leads to the production of a number of temptations where there was only one before. And in addition to drunkenness—which still exists—we have added, bootlegging, perjury and contempt for law. A great American statesman, John Quincy Adams, summed up the whole matter when he said, "Seek not to enforce upon your brother by legislative enactment the virtue that he can possess only by the dictates of his own conscience and the energy of his own will."

Not long ago the Spectator published an article entitled: "The Blight of Bryanism," which particularly attacked his absurd attitude on the subject of evolution, which Bryan apparently imagines to be a deadly sin. A very prominent English churchman, Dr. Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham, takes quite a different view from W. J. Bryan when, in a remarkable confession of faith, says:

God's word is not limited to Holy Scripture. God works through Newton and Darwin no less than through Isaiah and St. Paul. God's word is an ever-growing and ever-expanding revelation of Himself. I could not in this case deny the action of evolution without being disloyal to the promises I make in consecration.

Bryan in office proved himself to be the most blundering and incompetent Secretary of State the United States ever had while it is certainly an indication that his opinion about anything but vote-getting is not worth while considering.

How dining-cars lose money. On one Western United States railway in 1923 approximately $13,000 meals were served in dining cars and the average paid per meal was 89 cents. But the wages of employees, laundry expenses, upkeep of silver, crockery and glassware, fuel for cooking, ice and water and food supplies brought the cost of each meal up to $1.14, making a net loss per meal of 25 cents.

The total loss for the year amounted to $210,000, without including the cost of heating, lighting and hauling the cars, or the interest on the investment in equipment. The results on other roads are similar. The cost figures available show that the railroads on this continent as a whole lose 25 cents on every meal they serve.

The Minister of the Interior's plan for reclamation of the dry areas of Eastern Alberta and Western Saskatchewan seem to have considerable merits. The annual overhead cost of the irrigated area would not be prohibitive if the estimated $7.00 per acre is correct. Provision would, however, have to be made restricting the new owners of the "dry" lands from disposing them or breaking them up in perpetuity, otherwise with the advent of the first series of wet years, these lands would be disposed of to farmers and history would repeat itself. The idea is to retain these lands permanently in grass for stock purposes.

"Is it true, doctor," asked the gushing young lady, "that you are a lady-killer?" "My dear, Madam," replied the doctor, "in regard to the matter spoken of I make no distinction between the sexes."

BOWLING IS A POPULAR PASTIME
Lawn Bowling is a Summer Sport that is steadily gaining in popularity year by year, and rightly so, as it provides much needed exercise as well as excellent amusement and recreation. Many of the largest and best-known Bowling Greens throughout the country have been grown from Rennie's Seed. This seed is one of the best varieties in power, is easy to form and maintain a "true" angled sward, constantly green even in dry weather.

MAINLY FOR WOMEN

MARRIAGES, THOUGH ANNULLED, MAY YET BE LEGAL TIES

Attorney-General's Department
Is Preparing Stated Case—
May Upset Judgments—Is a
Queer Mix-Up—If Ontario Act
Upset Second Marriages Would
Be Void.

In the present situation of the law certain women in Ontario, believing themselves to be legally married, might find themselves living in infatuation with men not legally their husbands at all," stated Attorney-General W. F. Nickle last week, in describing the mix-up in Ontario marriage laws which has followed upon the recent annulment of marriages in certain cases by the Ontario courts. The situation to which Mr. Nickle refers is this—brides and grooms whose marriages are annulled by Ontario courts may find themselves automatically married again by a future judgment of any higher court, holding the present Ontario law invalid—this irrespective of whether or not they have since married again, or even if there are children by their second marriage. Such second marriages would in this event be invalid, and all children born under it would be illegitimate.

The officers of the attorney-general's department are at present at work preparing a stated case which will be carried as far as the supreme court of Canada, and very probably to the privy council, in an effort to straighten out the legal marriage tangle which has been created by the Ontario marriage law and certain recent decisions under it.

Arises Out of Recent Cases

The situation arises out of recent cases where marriages of young couples under 18 years of age were dissolved, because there was no written consent of the parents. These young people are now free to consider themselves as never having married, and in a position to wed any person of their choice, the same as though they had never gone through a form of marriage.

In neither of the two cases was an appeal taken, as the bride and groom in each case were satisfied to have the marriage annulled; but if, in some future case, an appeal is taken to the higher court and it is held that the Ontario courts have no power to dissolve marriages under the Ontario law, then all these young people who have considered themselves single and free to do as they please, will find themselves automatically married again to the bride or groom from whom they considered themselves legally free.

The situation presents no end of possible hardship, domestic and legal entanglement, according to the Ontario attorney-general. Even where the parties had married again, and had children under their second marriage, such a decision would apply. Take the case of a bride who has had her marriage annulled by an Ontario court—there are now two such cases, and a Barrie case now before Mr. Justice Kelly makes the third. Should she marry again, and have children, and some future appeal decide against the validity of the Ontario law, then she would find her self living with a man who was not her husband, and with children upon whom, would be placed the stigma of illegitimacy.

More than that she would find herself again legally married to the man with whom she had gone through the official ceremony. She would be forced to leave her husband and father of her family, or live with him in a state of illegal relationship, with a family born in illegality.

A Double Complication

In cases where both bride and groom had remarried the situation would be doubly complicated and untenable. Both bride and groom might find themselves with illegal partners in life, and illegal families in their own homes—all hinge upon a hair-line decision of a court at Ottawa or London England.

"The situation is preposterous and cannot be allowed to continue," asserted Mr. Nickle. "My department is at present at work preparing a stated case to be taken to the highest courts, to determine whether or not the section under which these marriages are being annulled is valid. If it is held that the section is ultra vires then, no matter what the hardships incurred, or how the circumstances have changed, these parties will find themselves legally married to each other. Any subsequent forms of marriage they have gone through would be of no force or effect."

"The present situation might result in terrible hardships. It is conceivable that a woman, very sensitive about such matters, might feel that she ought to abandon her children because of their illegitimacy. She might feel forced to leave the man she loved, because a man with whom she had no common sympathy or affection, had decided as soon as possible."

The Ontario law For some years the Ontario marriage act has provided that a person under 18 must have the consent of the parent or guardian before being married. In all cases brought, the act was held ultra vires, as beyond the power of the province, and enjoining on the jurisdiction of the federal government.

As the actual ceremony is within the jurisdiction of the province, the legislature in 1919 amended the act to make the consent a necessary part of the ceremony, and declaring that in the absence of such consent the marriage was void.

WHEN CHINA IS BROKEN

In these days, when very many women have some appreciation of old china, even if they do not understand much about it, and when most housewives have a few pieces, either handed down from forefathers or purchased, the question of how to make good a breakage of one of these treasures is an important one.

Restoring a broken piece is not necessary now that there are adhesives which admit a joint that at any rate on a patterned surface is not visible even at close range, and which is so strong that sometimes a piece that has been broken in a flash and not in the old one.

Successful Workers. Two or three women in England have taken up the work of restoring old china, and a very successful at it. One of them said that she recently had a large blue and white Oriental plate to restore that had been broken in two and then mended with large rivets that had rusted. She had to take them all out and fill the holes before she could make a satisfactory mend.

There are a few expert restorers in Canada, too; one of whom adopted as the motto on his sign "Never Too Late to Mend."

When a treasured piece is broken, it is a great mistake to try home mending, as various kinds of china and pottery need quite different treatment, and very often when a home-mended piece is sent to a restorer it is impossible to make a good job of it because use has been made of an adhesive leaving a white deposit which cannot be removed.

It is important when china is broken that even the tiniest shavings should be saved. The broken pieces should be packed separately in paper to be sent to the mender. Very often they are put in one parcel and the edges get chipped in transit, making the task of restoration doubly difficult.

At spring cleaning time good old china that has been put by with pieces broken off is sometimes thrown away because it is thought that if pieces are actually missing nothing can be done. But an expert restorer thinks nothing of adding a missing handle or inserting a circular piece in the edge of a plate. Figures that have a hand or a foot gone can be restored completely, and the flowers on Dresden and Chelsea china that so easily chip can be invisibly mended. One restorer in London had a specially valued old Chinese jar to mend that, besides being broken into 47 pieces, had four or five big pieces missing—no no breakage is hopeless.

Patience Required. China restoring requires endless patience. As sometimes the whole thing has to be taken to pieces again after it has been stuck together if the last piece does not fit correctly. The cost varies according to the value of the article mended.

Silk thread should be used as binding on silk and velvet, as cotton leaves a mark.

The regulation size for a placket is thirteen inches long. The facing is cut one and a half inches wide and twenty-six inches long. Cut lengthwise of material.

Under this amendment two marriages have already been annulled, and a third case is pending. Some of the foremost legal constitutional authorities in Toronto assert that in their opinion it was almost a foregone conclusion that the amendment, like the original section, is invalid as being a trespass on dominion powers, and would be held ultra vires in the first appeal taken.

Unfortunately no appeal has been taken to date. In his judgment annulling a marriage, under the first case, under the new section, Mr. Justice Wright expressed the hope that his decision would be reviewed by a higher court. But as the parties were in agreement on the dissolution, no appeal was taken.

In Barrie Mr. Justice Kelly, at the trial of a similar action stated: "I regret very much that such things (annulments) are possible under this act. It does not seem consistent with building up the morality on which the action must depend."

Testime on Fifth avenue, or on Michigan Boulevard—those are phrases to conjure with. But the passing of the teacups can be just as pleasing a ceremony at your own home, even if it's on Main street. If you buy tea that suits to a "T".

Such tea will not only be a "cup that cheers but not inebriates"; it will for the average person, be a beverage which, only mildly stimulating, is harmless; is, in fact, actually healthful, for it is a palate-pleaser and has a desirable effect on the appetite and normal digestion. The brewing of such a cup of tea, however, presupposes happy selection.

There's a Tea for Every Taste. If the cup is to be worth the drinking, the tea you buy must be of fine quality. But there are many kinds of fine teas, and you can have a great deal of leeway in your choice, which will depend merely on what your tea tastes happen to be. There are China teas, Ceylon teas, India teas, Java teas, Sumatra teas, Japan teas, among those you will find on the market.

The lighter infusions of good quality China teas are considered choicest by many of the most sophisticated tea-drinkers. But remember that you will find great variation in quality among these teas. China tea may be of the choicest or of the cheapest, so you may not seriously use the name as a sure indicator of quality, but must exercise discriminative judgment.

Drinker. If your guests or your family are made up of novices in tea drinking, or if they are great coffee drinkers, you will probably please them best by setting Ceylon and India black teas. These are not so mild as the best quality China teas, but are of rich, full flavor. The India teas are not ordinarily so sweet as the Ceylon teas, and your American family may consider some of them too heavy and strong. But you can buy many India teas of excellent quality, and if you want to appeal to the real epicure, try some of that which comes from the well-known Darjeeling district.

Or, some of the many "mixed teas" may appeal to you. These are the blends of green and black teas, and often result in a decided improvement of flavor over either. You will find the Java and Sumatra teas much like those from Ceylon and India.

Some Tea Tests. If you buy tea from Japan, you will know the finest quality by the medium or small-sized leaf. The infusion is of a clear, bright green, and of as fragrant an odor as you could ask. Whatever tea you decide to try, you can be sure it is genuine tea by observing the leaf. The sides of the tea leaf are jagged, having large "teeth"; the leaf is quite long, narrow and pointed at the end.

Try This In Your Teapot. Proper preparation is the next step if the tea is to be truly tempting. The confirmed tea drinker knows that the water used must be fresh and boiling; that the teapot must remain hot; though not boiling hot, for several minutes after the water is put into it; that, unless the tea leaves are removed, the beverage must not stand more than five minutes at most.

Sugar! Cream! Lemon! Finally having selected and prepared your tea with scrupulous care you come to the question so often considered all-important: how'll you take your tea?

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 4

The Two Types of Tea

There are two distinct types of tea, namely Black Tea and Green Tea. Both are made from the same bush and both are equally pure. The difference is in the process of manufacture which gives each a different flavour. Black Tea after it is plucked is withered and partially "fired" or dried, then allowed to oxidize by being exposed to the air. This gives Black Tea its dark reddish colour when drawn. Green tea is immediately steamed after plucking, which prevents oxidation. There are delicious blends of "SALADA" in both of these types and also a unique blend of Black and Green Tea Mixed. All are sold in four qualities.

William Hunter, of Grimsby, Ont., has been selected by the Dairy Cattle Committee, who framed up the Advanced Registration for Bulls, to be their senior inspector and which position he has accepted. From what we hear we believe this to be a most popular appointment. In the first place Mr. Hunter is widely known throughout Canada as an expert judge, which combined with his honesty of purpose, inspires confidence not only with the Ayres' men, but with those connected with the other breeds as well. The job is not an easy one, will involve much travelling, and an inspector in whom the breeders lacked confidence would have a hard time of it. With Mr. Hunter as chief inspector we believe the scheme will get off to a good start.

How the C.N.R. 1924 Dollar Was Spent

THE full circle shown above represents the gross income dollar of the Canadian National Railways in 1924. The circle is divided into a number of segments each of which represents the proportion into which the dollar was broken up for expenditure in the directions named.

The total amount spent on these items, in dollars and cents is as follows:

Labor	$127,216,017.40
Fuel	28,058,471.56
Materials, Supplies and other operating expenses	63,069,441.81
Taxes	4,588,593.56
Equipment and facility rentals, etc.	6,600,561.00
Balance available to apply on fixed charge	14,772,327.92
TOTAL	$344,305,413.25

This chart is interesting in that it is a guide to the part which the dollar of the Canadian National Railways plays in the business of the country as a whole. It is not an idle dollar. Nearly all of it remains in circulation and finds its way into every channel of industry and commerce.

As can be seen, wages paid to employees constitute, by far, the greater portion of expenditure. There are almost 100,000 employees who get their share of the company's revenues twice a month; and this money, therefore, circulates from one end of Canada to the other. None of it remains unproductive, but acts directly in the stimulation of trade and commerce in every centre where the distribution takes place. The greater part, of course, is immediately diverted into the channels of trade, but a considerable portion goes into savings banks, building and loan associations, insurance and other forms of investment. There are communities that are almost entirely dependent on the money which the System distributes in this way. No enterprise in Canada is such a large purchaser of supplies as the Canadian National Railways. Wherever it is possible to do so, these supplies are purchased in Canada from products manufactured by the Canadian workers or grown or mined in Canadian territory. The store rooms of the company, moreover, are well-stocked department stores. They contain thousands of separate items from elastic bands to pile drivers. The dining car commissariat is a steady customer of the Canadian farmer and fisherman. The enterprise is one that is intimate, associated with every phase of industrial activity in the Dominion from the publisher of a newspaper to the builder of locomotives. The purchases of the Canadian National Railways stimulate every branch of commerce and industry and their service provides an adequate and dependable agency for the transportation of people and their goods from place to place.

PLEASE DO NOT ASK QUESTIONS

Needless, Headless Queues Are
Bane of Telephone Office—
Operators Forbidden
Telling.

Have you ever had occasion to make a very urgent call on the telephone and find the operator did not answer in a moment?
Did it ever occur to you that the operator probably had two or three calls ahead of yours?
And if you were calling for a doctor, for instance, and you knew that the calls ahead of yours were from people asking for doctors, would you raise a row?
You bet you would! Central would be the biggest and most dilatory idiot; you would report her; you would rave to your neighbors that the telephone operator was telling Mrs. O'Flynn what time it was, when she should have been calling the doctor for you. But; do you ever stop to think of those things when you want to ask a question that Central has no right to answer?
When the fire bell rings, do you suppose that the girl at central has been to the fire and can tell you all about it?
Do you think you are the only person who is ringing central?
Do you stop to think that possibly someone else has legitimate calls going through?
And do you know that the rules of The Bell Telephone Company, and all telephone companies, forbid the operators answering questions as to the time of day; as to where fires are; as to "what was that awful noise like an explosion; surely central heard it; what was it; was anybody killed?"
But even if it was not against the rules do you think that central should be called upon to answer 750 calls (that is about the number of subscribers in the Grimsby exchange), and tell where a fire is located?
Seven times out of ten when people call up to get the fire chief they are so incoherent and indefinite that central has difficulty right at the start; but if you think the operators do not show remarkable ingenuity and speed in these cases, just ask the fire chief.
Remembering that central is not permitted to answer these questions, suppose you figure out what she should do, when you call and ask "where is the fire". Central should just simply pull the plug and go on to the next drop. And she should not answer your repeat call until she has answered—or refused to answer—all the rest.

And suppose after you attempted an answer to your fool question; that something should happen that you wanted to put an urgent call through, would you feel sorry that all these other people were asking questions that central had no right to answer?
When you hear the fire alarm you can easily take a look around and see if the fire is near. If it is you do not need to ask; if it is not near, you know whether you want to go or not, and if you are going, come to the fire hall and you will soon learn where to go; and if you are not going, it is hard to see why it is any of your business where the fire is.
And remember this also, Grimsby locks its doors at six o'clock, and after that it is very often that the operators are kept at the call of the fire chief until he has notified his various men, and if the operators spend their time answering your fool questions it would be a very dilatory fire brigade.

A big formal opening is planned for Monday, May 18, to take place at Beamsville, and the details of that were left in the hands of a committee having a meeting last Monday at North Grimsby, Grimsby Town, Beamsville, St. Catharines and Niagara Falls.

It is expected that residents of the fruit belt will fully co-operate to advertise the beauties and advantages of the district.

The Hamilton men have already done much promotion work, and that chamber of commerce had made an appropriation. Controller Davis assured the meeting that the Hamilton city council endorsed the scheme, and he felt satisfied they would assist; Lieut. Bell gave assurance for St. Catharines helping, and Grimsby and Niagara Falls municipalities may be depended upon.

BLOSSOM WEEK FOR DISTRICT

May 17 to 24 Inclusive Set As Date
For Autoists To See Beauty of 30,000 Acres in Bloom.

"Blossom Week" There is a wealth of meaning in the two words, be we in the midst of the blossom year, year year do not realize what they can in beauty to those from outside the vale where the or no fruit is own. Blossom Sunday has been custom for a few years past, but through the efforts of some live wires in Hamilton the period is to be extended for eight days, and a continent-wide publicity campaign put on.
At a luncheon and meeting held at the Village Inn on Tuesday evening, Blossom Week was made an assured part.

Col. F. P. Heale, secretary of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce, Russell T. Kelley of the Hamilton Advertising Agency and a member of the C. of C. Blossom Week Committee, the Controller Cal Davis, representative of the Hamilton city authorities, C. W. Kirkpatrick, industrial commissioner of Hamilton, Nelson Mills, W. J. Linton, Hamilton, W. Robinson, W. J. McNair, E. C. Hogarth, W. G. McPherson, agricultural representative of Hamilton; Lieut. Hugh Bell, manager of the St. Catharines chamber of commerce; George Westland of the Beamsville Express; L. B. Telford, reeve of Beamsville; A. D. Henderson of Beamsville, and a large number of Grimsby delegates were at the meeting, which had been called to outline plans and set a date.

The date was set as May 17 to 24 inclusive. Many arrangements have already been tentatively made and some of the methods of publicity will be broadcasting from three Toronto radio stations, from Hamilton, from London, Detroit, Buffalo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Troy, Rochester, Syracuse, Schenectady and other U. S. stations in photos of scenes in the fruit belt in various Sunday papers; co-operation of auto clubs, chambers of commerce, and newspapers; colored stickers for auto wind shields; sides in moving picture theatres, and other methods of getting the date and the beauty of the trip before all those within reach of the district.

The Hamilton men have already done much promotion work, and that chamber of commerce had made an appropriation. Controller Davis assured the meeting that the Hamilton city council endorsed the scheme, and he felt satisfied they would assist; Lieut.
